

GREAT STEEL STRIKE BEGINS

Thousands Will Be Affected by the Order Issued by President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association.

Machinery Being Removed by the Trust From the Dewees Wood Plant at McKeesport Today But the Amalgamated Officials Regard it as a Mere Bluff—Furnace Men Will Meet at Niles Tuesday—Estimate of Men Who Will be Idle—The Strike Situation.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—The general strike order of President Shaffer of the Amalgamated goes into effect today. If fully obeyed it is estimated 33,970 more workmen will be idle as follows:

National Tube—McKeesport, 8,500; Riverside (Whesling) 6,000; Republic (Pittsburg) 1,510; Continental (Pittsburg) 960. Total 16,970.

National Steel—New Castle 2,000; Mingo Junction (Ohio) 1,500. Total 3,500.

Federal Steel—North and South Chicago and Bridgeport, 6,000; Joliet, 2,000. Total, 9,000.

(In doubt—but may strike)—Bay View (Milwaukee) 1,500; Furnaces, 3,000. Total, 4,500.

Recapitulation—National Tube, 16,970; National Steel, 3,500; Federal Steel, 13,500. Grand total, 33,970.

Warren, O., Aug. 10.—Investigation shows that all but one of the furnace stacks of Mahoning Valley are making iron for the United States Steel corporation. A meeting of furnace men will be held at Niles Tuesday to fully determine upon the strike question. The combine threatens to move the Warren and Girard Mills to Pittsburg unless the strike is settled and have men here taking an inventory to that end.

Washington, Aug. 10.—President Gompers and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor have returned from Pittsburg. Mr. Gompers stated that he had nothing to add to the statement given by him to the press. The policy therein declared would be fully carried out by the American Federation of Labor.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 10.—The men at the large riverside iron works came out on strike this morning. This plant was being operated as a non-union mill.

New Castle, Pa., Aug. 10.—The fraternal picnic of the Trades and Labor unions today became of national interest because President Shaffer was there. Six thousand men were in the procession and Shaffer marched with them. Shaffer made an impassioned speech, saying that non-union men should be treated as brothers to be respected and reasoned with, and he scored the capitalists.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 10.—The men employed in the skelp department of the Riverside tube mill went out at the close of the turn at 2 o'clock this morning. This is the only unionized department of the mill and the strike was expected there. The other departments are so far as known non-union but Amalgamated officials claim that they will get them out today. The Riverside is the second largest mill of the National Tube company and employ about 5,000 men.

Warren, O., Aug. 10.—A meeting of the Steel trust men of this district will be held at Niles Tuesday to discuss the strike. The trust threatens to move the Warren and Girard mills to Pittsburg unless the strike is settled.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 10.—"The work of dismantling the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet Steel company, was commenced this morning, on instructions from head officers of the company," said George J. F. Falkenstein paymaster at the works today. "About 150 laborers are in the mills preparing the machinery for removal. It will require about 500 railroad cars to haul away the equipment to the Kiskiminetas Valley where the mill is to be removed. I will give my office force two weeks notice today that their services will not be needed at the expiration of that time."

The buildings of the plant are tightly closed. Outsiders can see nothing but from the noise made there seems to be something doing on the inside. The union workmen still believe that the order to move Woods mill is only a bluff. They assert that there is a lot of old machinery in the plant which should have been taken out long ago.

Nothing is operating at the Demmeler mill. The National Tube company's plants are today running as usual. The strike order of President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association goes into effect with the day turn suspension this afternoon. Just what stand the tube workers will take is a matter of conjecture. The union leaders claim the men are well organized and the strike order will be generally obeyed.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—"The threat of the trust to remove the Dewees Wood mill from McKeesport is regarded by the Amalgamated Association officials as a mere bluff. But going a little further, should it be the intention of the trust to dismantle that mill and ruin the town in retaliation against the men who stood up for justice and right it would be the first act of destruction in the strike. It would arouse universal indignation as a high handed and arrogant assertion of money power."

This statement was given to this association by the National Organizer John Price, one of the oldest members of the Amalgamated Association. The statement voices the opinion of the Amalgamated Association's national officers.

President Shaffer left for New Castle this morning to speak at the great mass meeting there this afternoon. He will be at McKeesport this evening and will address the big open meeting this morning. The officials present refused to discuss the strike situation. "Wait patiently," said Secretary Williams. "This is not the time to talk but to do. I can't discuss the strike today. Monday we will know all about it."

The strikers have been signally successful since yesterday afternoon in getting workers away from the Lindsey and McCutcheon plant. This morning but 12 men were working in the mill and of this number only one is a skilled working man. A puddler is learning to do the work of a heater with poor success. Information this morning was not a wheel was turning in the mill, and that the plant was effectively tied up. The usual capacity of this plant is 400 bundles. Yesterday but 12 bundles of cotton ties were turned out, representing only 1,000 pounds of finished material. It is expected that before the day is over the mill will be deserted.

Pomeroy, Ohio, Aug. 10.—Manager Sellar, of the local mill of the American Steel Hoop company, says he will endeavor to start the mill Monday. Today he called upon Mayor Long and asked if police protection would be furnished in case men were brought here to work. The mayor told him flatly that no such protection would be afforded, and that he would use his influence to prevent outsiders taking the places of the home workers. The mayor says that if the company invites trouble by importing a lot of non-union men and a riot follows, he will swear in the best men among the strikers as special police and instruct them to maintain order, even if they have to arrest the non-union men as fast as they strike the town.

STOLEN

GOLD RECOVERED TODAY IN THE BAY.

ALL MAY YET BE RECOVERED.

The Exact Spot Where the Gold Had Been Dropped Was Pointed Out by John Winters alias "Buck" Taylor Who Had Made a Confession of the Theft.

Crockett, Cal., Aug. 10.—Seventy thousand dollars worth of the gold bullion stolen from the Selby Smelter was recovered in the bay near here today. The spot where it had been dropped was shown by John Winters, alias "Buck" Taylor, who was arrested near San Rafael a few days ago and who made a confession last night. The police expect to recover the balance in a few hours.

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—"Buck" Taylor, or Winters, the gold robber, says he was alone in the robbery which he had been planning for years. He says it took him six weeks to dig the tunnel. One hundred thousand dollars in gold has been recovered and the balance will be secured at low tide.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

WORKERS' COUNCIL HELD IN THE CITY SATURDAY

With Large Attendance—Methods of Conducting the Work—At First Presbyterian Church.

The Licking County Sunday School Workers' Council met at the First Presbyterian church this morning at 9 o'clock, a large attendance being present.

The session opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. B. F. Parr, who also delivered the opening address, the keynote of which was "Sowing." This was followed by an address by Mr. Joseph Clark of Columbus, State Sunday School Secretary in which he spoke of "The World-Wide Sunday School." His talk was full of excellent and helpful suggestions, as well as interesting information.

He was followed by a short address by Rev. M. L. Bates, who on account of his moving to another county is compelled to give up the presidency of the county association, which he has so faithfully and ably filled for the past two years.

At this point in the meeting Mrs. L. S. Boyce then asked the chairman to make an announcement and given the opportunity she announced that the ladies of the First Presbyterian church would entertain the workers at dinner in the church parlors, which was much enjoyed by all present and greatly appreciated. The morning session then closed with prayer.

A social hour was spent at dinner. The afternoon session opened at 1 o'clock by Prof. W. A. Chamberlain of Granville, who conducted the devotional exercises. Following this the subject "The Business End of the Town—Ship Sunday School Association" was presented by the president, Rev. M. L. Bates, and was followed with an open discussion. The different lines of work were taken up by different country workers.

The Normal talk by Prof. Chamberlain, House Visitation Work by W. Holmes, The Primary Work by M. S. Wells of Granville, and the Secretary Clark was present all day and kindly and ably planned the day's work. The meeting is well attended and many plans are arranged for the coming year.

Determined to Die.

Waynesboro, Ga., Aug. 10.—Sam Trowbridge, a barber, was accused yesterday by Lucy Easter, a negro woman, of catching her chickens by baiting fish hooks with corn. He went to her house with a razor and cut her throat. He was arrested and on his way to jail made an effort to swallow morphine. After being placed in jail he drew a knife from his shoe and cut his throat.

Over News From Delaware That His Sweetheart Will Soon be Released From School.

Columbus, O., Aug. 10.—Joseph Brinkerman, who returned from the Klondike to marry Nancy Kennell and who found her in the Girls' Industrial Home at Delaware when he reached this city, has received word from Captain Stiles, the superintendent of the home, that he will probably be permitted to take the girl out of the institution and marry her at the meeting of the board of managers on August 11. Brinkerman is elated over the good news and will marry as soon as possible, and after a brief visit to his home in St. Louis, will go to Juneau.

NEELY'S ESCAPE

From Punishment Seems Probable. Certain Witnesses Refuse to go to Cuba to Testify.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Professed apprehension prevails at the department of justice over the Neely case. In view of the refusal of the most important Government witnesses to attend the trial and present testimony which might lead to the prompt conviction of Neely and his sentence to a long term of imprisonment. Without these witnesses the Government's case is weakened to an extent which may render a verdict of guilty almost improbable.

A FATHER AND SON MARRY SISTERS.

Liberty, Mo., Aug. 10.—Harper Hunt and his son, Thomas, were married here Thursday night to Ada and Ellen Campbell, sisters. The party arrived just before the ceremony from Pleasant Valley, Nicholas county, Ky., and came to visit relatives of the groom. The elder Hunt is 56 years old and his bride is 21. When a newspaper man enquired of the Benzoid authorities as to the location of his daughter, he was told that she was in the hands of the police and that he would have to pay for her release.

The Benzoid authorities are now trying to locate the girl, but have no money to pay for her release. The girl's father is a poor man and has no money to pay for her release.

Who is Thought to be Shamming Insanity, Was Arrested at Pen Door This Morning.

Columbus, O., Aug. 10.—Deputy Sheriff W. L. Eggers of Cleveland today arrested Fred Amos, a Cuyahoga county convict, as he was about to be released from the penitentiary. He will be tried first on a lunacy charge on Monday.

A Big Fire.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10.—A big fire is raging in North St. Louis. The Hapman-Lotsman planing mill has been destroyed; loss $250,000. Many other big concerns are threatened. The fire is not yet under control at 3 p. m.

A Flying Machine.

Paris, Aug. 10.—A Canadian by the name of Marceau, a printer by trade, has constructed at his home at Neuilly a village of France, a flying machine which promises to prove a prodigious step in advance in aerial navigation. The machine is a bird-like affair, which enables men to fly individually. A 12-horse power motor moves a set of aluminum wings which are attached to the operator, and which regulate the speed and direction taken. The machine enables the flyer to rise and alight at will.

Ship Dynamited.

New Orleans, Aug. 10.—The British mule ship Mechanician was dynamited here last night and badly damaged. It is believed to have been the work of Boer sympathizers or dissatisfied mechanics. A bomb was attached to the outside of the vessel and exploded, causing the ship to be damaged. The ship was injured. With proper repairs she can sail to Liverpool for permanent repairs.

SAMPSON

Said to Have Been Informed by Signals That Cervera Was Going to Escape.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Malcolm McDowell, a newspaper correspondent who was with Shaffer at Santiago, adds an interesting chapter to the Senley-Sampson controversy in today's News. He says:

"The day before the Spanish fleet made its dash out of the bay it was common talk around General Shaffer's headquarters that the French consul in Santiago had been told by an officer of Cervera's fleet that the Spanish Admiral would leave the harbor at 6 o'clock the following morning. On that day I was told by several officers that the French consul had told Major Noble that Cervera was getting ready to leave and would make the attempt the next morning."

"None of us believed that the Spanish Admiral would attempt such a dash, and we were told that day that the news was 'swag'—a guess—by one of General Shaffer's men from the shore to Admiral Sampson."

Washington, Aug. 10.—The navy department today recommended Admiral Evans for cabinet ex-Senator Chandler as "insider" in Evans' book, "A Sailor's Log."

It begins to look as if intervention by Chili in the affairs of the other South American nations is much more probable than intervention by the United States. Chili is a thoroughly organized military republic, with a superb army and a strong navy. Its people are ambitious for power and empire. They defeated Bolivia and Peru together in the war fifteen or twenty years ago, and have been gaining in strength ever since. The time is nearly here when they are to surrender the nitrate tracts of Peru which they occupied, for a term of years while they collected the indemnity which Bolivia and Peru agreed to pay as the price of peace. If they should fail to make this restitution serious trouble is likely to follow.

The Republicans of Iowa in convention assembled announce that they "stand by the historic policy of the Republican party in giving protection to home industry." Time was when the Republicans of Iowa did nothing of the sort. The "historic policy of the Republican party" in protecting favored interests and in creating and fostering monopolies and combinations was adopted in defiance of the revenue tariff sentiment of the party in Iowa and not an Iowa Republican of prominence has had the courage to protest.

DICKOCRATS.

(Champaign Democrat.)

The six nondescript who went through with the farce of organizing a new party at Columbus last week held their meeting in the bed room of the chief promoter of the movement. There were twelve reporters present, who, being a majority of those in attendance, decided to call the new political element the Dickocratic party, in honor of its sponsor and backer, the Hon. Major General Charles W. F. Dick, chairman of the Republican state executive committee and check-book manipulator for Boss Hanna. A member of the new party is therefore a Dickocrat.

Naval Pre-eminence Popular.

(St. Louis Republic.)
The people of this country are unalterably opposed to a big standing army, knowing that the menace of such a military establishment is greater to themselves than any outside peoples. But they never utter one word of protest against the development of American sea power. They desire that their government shall possess the premier navy of the world. It is the common sense of the nation which creates this eminently wise sentiment.

Hanna Needs a Vindication.

(Indianapolis Sentinel.)
Senator Scott of West Virginia, whose barrel is more commanding than his statesmanship, insists upon the nomination of Mark Hanna for President. The suggestion is appropriate. Mr. Hanna's administration will be on trial in 1904 and he ought to accept the responsibility of securing its vindication.

CAMPAIGN FUND

school of politics, and after remonstrating and sweating in vain the victims will put up this year as heretofore.

One indication of this kind of "prosperity" is already in evidence at Republican state headquarters. In each of the half dozen departments there are more clerks at work than the Democrats were able to employ for their entire work last year. Every head of a department has his chief clerk, his private stenographer, clerical force, typewriters, messengers, porters, courier-jumpers and other functionaries "to burn" in the next world if not in this. The storage rooms are filled high with documents which are already being sent broadcast, while the large traveling contingent of the committee representing the missionary forces of Chairman Dick, selected with a special view to their fitness for certain lines of work not intended for publication, is at this early day beginning to put in an appearance. The daily expenses, including salaries, run up into the hundreds now, a month and a half before the campaign is announced to be opened. What they will be when in full blast can only be conjectured and will never be known except to Hanna, Dick, Malloy and Burdell; but at the proper time all will make affidavit under the corrupt practices act that they kept within the law, and Nash will solemnly swear that it cost only something like three hundred dollars to be defeated.

At the outset of the campaign the Democrats must take into account the influence of this enormous power of money and prepare to meet it. They hope that the unscrupulous use of boodle by the Republicans will in a measure tend to defeat the very object it is designed to promote, and that it will array the decent voters of both parties, who are opposed to the unlimited use of money in campaigns, against the Republican ticket. This hope is a reasonable one, since the number of those who are disgusted with Hanna's methods is increasing every year. But the Democratic committee must also take due cognizance of the necessity of thorough organization, such as the Republicans are able to rely upon. A new Democratic organization is to be effected this year by new hands, and must have the earnest cooperation of Democrats in every county. Conditions are so favorable to Democratic success this year that the whole question of defeat or victory rests with the organization of the party, if that is perfected locally in the cities, towns, counties, wards and townships, harmoniously working with the state committee, the party will be able to take advantage of the opportunity offered it by general conditions and will have no reason to fear the Hanna corruption fund.

The Democratic state executive committee will have money enough to meet all necessary and legitimate expenses; there need be no doubt on that score. It has no army of office-holders nor a national fund to draw upon. Every dollar spent by the Democrats in Ohio will be raised in Ohio, and not a cent will be wrung from corrupt or unwilling sources. Notwithstanding this the party will have enough for an honest campaign and only requires a perfect organization to win easily but honorably.

Regularly every year a lot of people are led to believe that here are from 25 to 50 positions in the Democratic state executive committee at from $25 to $100 a week, and a great mass of people are led to get them, only to be disappointed, and go away with not a cent. As a matter of fact there are never more than ten people holding positions, and these include janitor, messenger, stenographer and clerks, the only ones receiving fixed salaries, which range from $8 to $15 a week.

For 20 years the funds at the disposal of the committee ran from $5,500 to $8,000 a year, averaging annually about $4,500.

Out of this are paid all the expenses, and if liabilities beyond the funds are incurred the members of the committee chip in and make good. Occasionally from $100 to $250 have to be made up in this way.

This false idea of Democratic committee wealth is created by Republican newspapers. The writers on these papers know what the Republican committee spends and credit the Democratic committee with it—for effect.

They know that there has not been a campaign since 1890, in which the Republicans did not have from $50,000 to $200,000 at its command and employed from 30 to 75 people at salaries ranging from $8 to $200 per week, the former being the salary of the assistant janitor, the latter of the chairman.

The average weekly payroll for employees in the Democratic committee is $135. In the Republican committee $1,200. The average weekly expenditures of the Democratic committee for rent, expenses of members, postage, stationery, expressage, telegraph, telephone, printing and plate matter is $250. In the Republican committee $2,000 for the same; or $385 a week for the Democrats and $3,200 a week for the Republicans.

The active campaign lasts about six weeks, making $4,600 for the Democrats during the campaign and $36,000 for the Republicans.

The $4,600, representing the cost of committee work of the Democrats, is more than the average amount of the committee funds. If these reach the high water mark of $8,000 the committee can spend $3,200 in what is called "organization of counties," or less than $50 to the county.

The $36,000 representing the cost of committee work by the Republicans is $4,000 less than the minimum and $165,000 less than the maximum of their resources. If they have but $50,000 they can apply $175 to organization in each of the 88 counties. If they have $200,000, about the sum they will have this year, they have something like $2,000 for each county to be used in "fixing things."

These are the plain facts about the matter. They will not be disputed by well informed politicians.

The most interesting problem now occupying the attention of politicians is whether the mysterious influence behind the Great "Bryan movement" will be able to get a third ticket on the official ballot by petition. Ten thousand signers will be necessary to accomplish this object; and it is estimated that the signatures would cost Hanna $10,000, or a dollar apiece. Nobody but paid men would circulate such petitions this year and there is no doubt that the signatures would be more difficult to obtain than formerly. The Democracy is so united that the circulation of the petitions would have to rely upon Republicans to stultify themselves by signing and entering into a false compact to vote one ticket when they fully intend to vote another. It would also be necessary, as has been done heretofore, to draw upon tombstones for names and invent others wholly fictitious, but this is not difficult and has been done before. The only question with Hanna is whether the game is worth the candle this year. After viewing the whole situation he is very likely to conclude that it will require too much money with the chances of success too small to justify the expenditure. It is a moral certainty however, whether the scheme is attempted again or not, it will not fool enough voters to make it a formidable factor in the election.

strike order of President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association becomes effective. In well informed quarters here there is doubt as to the men and properties that will be affected by the order. Mill managers say the final showing will be far under the claims made by the Amalgamated Association. President Shaffer would not talk figures, but his associates were positive that their first claims were correct.

One estimate prepared here says 45,000 men are idle under the first strike call, and that the general call will increase the number to 125,000. Continuing, the estimate says: "The National Tube company has 30,000 workmen, the Federal 18,000, while the National Steel company has 12,000, making a total of 125,000, as follows: Skilled men now out, 20,000; others who are idle as a result of the strike, 45,000; National Tube company employees, 30,000; Federal Steel company, 18,000; National Steel company, 12,000; total 125,000. The plants which will be affected are the American Tin Plate company, American Steel Hoop plants, American Sheet Steel plants, American Steel and Wire company, Federal Steel company's plants and National Tube company. Ohio will have 15,000 men, Pennsylvania 12,000, Indiana 10,000, Illinois 12,000, making a total of 52,000, while New York, Michigan, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Iowa and other states will have 45,000 idle men. It is impossible to estimate how many men will be indirectly affected."

WILL BE DISMANTLED.

Trust Decides to Remove Wood Plant From McKeesport.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—The United States Steel corporation issued a peremptory order directing that the Deewe's Wood plant at McKeesport be dismantled and removed to the Kiskiminetas valley. Persifer F. Smith, district manager for the American Sheet Steel company, made the formal announcement in the following statement: "I have orders from President McMurtry of the American Sheet Steel company to tear down at once the Deewe's Wood plant at McKeesport and remove same to Kiskiminetas valley. This I shall proceed to do immediately." This is considered a blow struck at the very vitals of the Amalgamated Association.

The strikers heard the order in a spirit of defiance. They simply said it showed the steel corporation was convinced it could not reopen the plant in the face of the opposition of the Amalgamated Association. Strike leaders said the order was a bluff that had been worked unsuccessfully before, and declined to take it seriously. Smith's statement was shown to President Shaffer, but after reading it he declined to talk about it.

The trust officials declined to give any reason for the order, but it is openly stated here that the pronounced sympathy of citizens and city officials at McKeesport with the strikers is responsible for it. It is also said that the plan of the National Tube company at McKeesport will be abandoned and the old Carnegie plan for a tube plant at Conneaut, O., revived. The National Tube company has in contemplation improvements at McKeesport of an extensive nature, but it is now said that owing to their disappointment at the fact that their men have been drawn into the Amalgamated dispute and the policy of the people at McKeesport they are seriously considering the project of removing the plant.

The Deewe's Wood plant was founded about 40 years ago and is one of the best known plants in Pennsylvania. Its yards and mills cover between 12 and 14 acres; it has employed 1,200 men at its busiest times and its cost is placed at $5,000,000 by officials of the steel corporation.

IT'S A "PEACH"

NEW APPARATUS PATENTED BY TWO NEWARK MEN.

Scheidler and Brown are Arranging to Manufacture "Peach" Stone Extractors.

Messrs. Oscar A. Scheidler and George W. Brown, both of this city, who a few months ago obtained a patent on an apparatus for splitting and stoning fruit, are now arranging for the manufacture of the Peach

Stone Extractors, and they expect to have them on the market this fall. The machine is admirably adapted for the removal of stones from cling peaches. It does the work neatly, quickly and thoroughly, leaving absolutely none of the peach attached to the stone after the process is completed. The accompanying illustration will give the reader an idea of the little machine. The frame is made of malleable iron galvanized, into which two rubber sockets are fitted. These rubbers are corrugated for better holding the peach. The peach is first placed in the lower jaw with the "seam" parallel to the base, as shown in the figure. The severing wire also shown in the illustration, is then coiled around the peach and by means of the wooden knob attached to the end of the wire is pulled tightly about the peach cutting it to the stone. After this, the upper half of the apparatus is placed over the peach and with a pressure downward and a quarter turn in either direction, the peach is separated into halves. Then the stone remains in the lower half, and is extracted by inverting the upper part of the apparatus and placing the extractor on the stone and giving it a quarter turn with pressure downward. The jaws being made of rubber, the peach is in no way bruised. The meat of the peach is thoroughly separated from the stone and there is no waste whatever. The operation is simple and quick. One can stone a bushel of cling peaches in a fourth the time usually required and with far less labor. An additional advantage is that the peaches are not bruised in the least.

MRS. SHOWMAN

Died Saturday Morning at the Age of 86 Years at the Home of Her Son, William.

Mahulda Showman, aged 86 years, died at the residence of her son, Mr. W. R. Showman at 8:30 o'clock this morning after a year's illness with dropsy. The funeral will take place from W. R. Showman's residence at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, Rev. A. E. Johnson, conducting the services. Interment in Cedar Hill cemetery.

The deceased came with her father from Glenford county, Pa., when 12 years old and settled at Jacksontown, this county. She has lived on the present Showman farm for the past 45 years. She has been a consistent member of the M. E. church for the past 60 years.

One daughter survives, Mrs. W. R. Showman. The seeming incongruity in the relationship which appears above is easily explained by the fact that the deceased was a mother of Mrs. Showman and a step-mother of Mr. W. R. Showman, he having married his step-sister.

WILL—The will of Mary Baughman, deceased, of this city, has been admitted to probate, and Judge Samuel M. Hunter has been appointed executor with the will annexed.

DOCTORS DISAGREE

Over the Diagnosis of Arkins' Case--At Any Rate the Young Man is Still Very Sick and Remains Strapped in Bed Well Guarded.

Harry Arkin, who is at the City Hospital suffering with an attack of hydrophobia, was very little better this Friday night and he arrived here this morning, and passed a very bad night. From 10 o'clock Friday night until 2 o'clock Saturday morning he was comparatively quiet, but from that time until morning he had eight spasms, which were exceedingly violent.

At 8 o'clock he was resting well, under the influence of powerful opiates. His periods of quietness however, are usually from total physical exhaustion as he almost collapses from his struggles during the spasms.

At times he has become stubborn and refuses to take his medicine, in which case they are administered hypodermically.

The patient needs constant watching, even during his short lucid periods as he at this time possesses unusual cunning. Friday night he drew his attendant's attention to the gnats about the gas light, and quick as a flash he had loosened one of his arms from where it was bound. The attendants sometimes loosen one arm at a time, watching him closely, and Arkin begs piteously for them to loosen the other "just a trifle, which of course, they dare not do. His case is indeed, a sad one.

Dr. Cary F. Legg made a rather startling statement to the Advocate at noon, saying that Arkin is not suffering from hydrophobia at all, but is suffering from a severe attack of hysteria. Dr. J. P. H. Stedem who also examined Arkin agrees with Dr. Legg.

Dr. Legg says that the patient imagines that he has hydrophobia and some of the symptoms are apparently present, but the most prominent symptoms of hydrophobia—the dread of water and frothing at the mouth—are absent. The doctor says the fact that his pulse is very regular is another indication that his trouble is not hydrophobia.

Dr. Legg says that the patient has a very vivid imagination and is laboring under the hallucination that he was bitten by a dog seven years ago, but that there are no scars or other evidence of his having been bitten. During his hysterical state he has illusions of some one trying to kill him. In the Doctor's mind Arkin's hysteria has been prompted by vexation.

The patient is resting well today and is taking nourishment. A messenger with a mixed company attending his levee.

Archie Davis and wife, and Mrs. P. Smith left for Put-in-Bay, Buffalo and a trip down the St. Lawrence river.

Miss Helen Brennan and Miss Roman left Wednesday for a trip to Cleveland and Atlantic City.

CHAPTER II.

Soon after 12 o'clock the doors of the private apartments were thrown open, and his lordship appeared wearing the look of dignity and proud condescension combined which well became the star he wore and the ancient title which he had inherited. His age was about 30, a time of life when there linger some remains of youth and the serious responsibilities are yet with some men hardly felt. His face was cold and proud and hard, the lips firmly set, the eyes keen and even piercing, the features regular, his stature tall, but not ungainly; his figure manly. It was remarkable among those who knew him intimately that there was as yet no sign of luxurious living on face and figure. He was not as yet swelled out with wine and punch; his neck was still slender, his face pale, without any telltale marks of wine and debauchery. So far as appearance goes, he might pass if he chose for a person of the most rigid and even austere virtue.

This, as I have said, was considered remarkable by his friends, most of whom were already stamped on face and feature and figure with the outward and visible tokens of a prodigal life, for, to confess the truth at the very beginning and not to attempt concealment or to suffer a false belief as regards this nobleman, he was nothing better than a cold blooded, pitiless, selfish libertine, a rake and a voluptuary, one who knew and obeyed no laws save the laws of (so called) honor. These laws allow a man to waste his fortune at the gaming table, to ruin confiding friends, to spend his time with rake companions in drink and riot and debauchery of all kinds. He must, however, pay his gambling debts; he must not cheat at cards; he must be polite in speech; he must be ready to fight whenever the occasion calls for his sword and the quarrel seems of sufficient importance. Lord Fylingdale, however, was not among those who found his chief pleasure scouring the streets and in mad riot. You shall learn in due course what forms of pleasure chiefly attracted him.

I have said that his face was proud. There was not, I believe, any man living in the whole world who could compare with Lord Fylingdale for pride. An overwhelming pride sat upon his brow, was proclaimed by his eyes and was betrayed by his carriage. With such pride did Lucifer look round upon his companions, fallen as they were and in the depths of hopeless ruin. He was dressed in a manner becoming to his rank. Need we dwell upon his coat of purple velvet, his embroidered waistcoat, his white silk stockings, his lace of ruffles and cravat, his gold buckles and his gold clocks, his laced hat carried under his arm, his jeweled sword hilt and the rings upon his fingers? You would think by his dress that his wealth was equal to his pride, and by his reception of the suitors that his power was equal to both pride and wealth together.

The levee began. One after the other stepped up to him, spoke a few words, received a few words in reply and retired, each apparently well pleased, for promises cost nothing. To the poet who asked for a subscription and proffered a dedication my lord promised the former, accepted the latter and added a few words of praise and good wishes. But the subscription was never paid, and the dedication was afterwards altered so far as the superscription to another noble patron. To the clergyman who asked for a country living then vacant my lord promised the most kindly consideration and bade him write his request and send it him by letter for better assurance of remembrance. To the officer he promised his company as only due to gallantry and military skill. To the place hunter he promised a post far beyond the dreams and the hopes of the suppliant. Nothing more came of it to either.

The company grew thin. One after the other the suitors withdrew to feed on promises. It is like opening your mouth to drink the wind. But 'twas all they got.

When they were gone, Lord Fylingdale looked round the room. In the window stood, dangling a cane from his wrist, a gentleman dressed in the highest and the latest fashion.

Yet when one looked more closely it was seen that this gallant exterior arrayed an ancient gentleman whose years were proclaimed by the sharpening of his features, the wrinkles of his feet, the crow's feet round his eyes and his bending shoulders, which he continually endeavored to set square and upright. Hat in one hand and snuffbox in the other, he ambled toward his lordship on tiptoe, which happened just then to be the fashionable gait.

"Thy servant, Sir Harry." My lord offered him his hand with condescension. "It warms my heart to see thee."

Therefore I sent a letter. Briefly, Sir Harry, wouldst do me a service?"

"I am always at your lordship's commands. This, I hope, I have proved." "Then, Sir Harry, this is the case. It is probable that for certain private reasons I may have to pay a visit to a country town, a town of tapers and traders, not a town of fashion." Sir Harry smiled and looked incredulous. "I want on the spot a friend," Sir Harry smiled again, as one who began to understand—"a friend who would appear to be a stranger. Would you, therefore, play the part of such a friend?"

"I will do whatever your lordship commands. Yet to leave town at this season—it was then the month of April—"the assembly, the park, the card table, the society of the ladies—It is possible that the Lady Anastasia may go there. She will, as usual, keep the bank if she does go."

The old bean's face cleared, whether in anticipation of Lady Anastasia's society or her card table I know not.

"My character, Sir Harry, will be in your hands. I leave it there confidently. For reasons—reasons of state—it should be a character of—"

"I understand. Your lordship is a model of all the virtues."

"So we understand. My secretary will converse with thee further on the point of expenditure."

Sir Harry retired, bowing and twisting his body something like an ape. Then a gentleman in scarlet presented himself.

"Your lordship's most obedient," he said, with scant courtesy. "I come in obedience to your letter of command."

"Colonel, you will hold yourself in readiness to go into the country. There will be play. You may lose as much as you please to Sir Harry Malyer or to any one else whom my secretary will point out to you. Perhaps you may have to receive a remonstrance from me. We are strangers, remember, and I am no gambler, though I sometimes take a card." And he, too, retired.

There remained one suitor. He was a clergyman dressed in a fine silk cassock with bands of the whitest and a noble wig of the order ecclesiastic. I doubt if the archbishop himself had a finer.

"Good, my lord," he said. "I am, as usual, a suppliant. The rectory of St. Leonard to St. Jewry, in the City, is now vacant. With my small benefices in the country it would suit me hugely. A word from your lordship to the lord mayor—the rectory is in the gift of the corporation—would, I am sure, suffice."

"You are living, as usual, I suppose, at great expense."

"At small expense considering my abilities, but still at greater expense than my slender income will allow. Am I not your lordship's domestic chaplain? Must I not keep up the dignity due to the position?"

"Your dignity is costly. I must get a bishopric or a deanery for you. Meantime I have a small service to ask of you."

"Small? My lord, let it be great; it cannot be too great."

"It is that you go into the country for me."

"Not to Bath or to Oxford?"

"Not to either; to another place, where they know not thy name or thy fame. Very good. I thought I could depend upon your loyalty. As for arrangements and time, you will hear from my secretary." So my lord turned on his heel, and his chaplain was dismissed.

When the levee was finished and everybody gone, Lord Fylingdale sank into a chair. I know not the nature of his thoughts save that they were not pleasant, for his face grew darker every moment. Finally he sprang to his feet and rang the bell. "Tell Mr. Semple that I would speak with him," he ordered.

Mr. Semple, the same Samuel whom you have seen under a busting from the captain, was now changed and for the better. He wore the dress of a poet. At this time he also called himself secretary to his lordship.

"Semple," said his lordship, crossing his legs and playing with the tassel of his sword knot. "I have read thy letter."

"Your lordship will impute?"

"First, what is the meaning of the preamble?"

"I have been your lordship's secretary for six months. I have therefore perused all your lordship's letters. I have also in my zeal for your lordship's interests looked about me, and I discovered what I ventured to state in that preamble."

"Well, Sir Harry, that the Fylingdale estates are gone so far as your lordship's life is concerned, but in a word all is gone, and that—your lordship will pardon the plain truth—your lordship's credit cannot last long and that—I now touch a most delicate point to a man of your lordship's nice sense of honor—the only resource left is precaution."

"You mean—"

"I mean a certain lady and a certain bank." "How, Sir Harry? Do you date? What has put this suspicion into your head?" "Nay, my lord; I have no thought but for your lordship's interests, believe me." "And so you tell me about the rustic heiress, and you propose a plan?" "I have had the temerity to do so." "Yes. Tell me once more about this girl and about her fortune." "Her name is Molly Miller. She is an orphan. Her guardian is an honest tailor who has taken the greatest care of her property. She was an heiress already when her father died. That was 18 years ago. She is now 19."

"Is she passable to look at? A bold den with a high color, I warrant."

"A cream colored complexion touched with red and pink, light hair in curls and blue eyes, the face and figure of a Venus, the sweetest mouth in the world and the fondest manner."

"Haug me if the fellow isn't in love with her himself! If she is all this, man, why not apply yourself for the post of spouse?"

"Because her guardian keeps off all would-be lovers and desires his ward for a gentleman at least, for a nobleman he hopes."

"He is ambitious. Now as to her fortune."

"She has a fleet of half a dozen tall vessels—nay, there are more, but I know not how many. I was formerly a clerk in a counting house of the town, and I learned a great deal—what each is worth and what the freight of each voyage may produce—but not all. The captain, her guardian, keeps things close. My lord, I can assure you from what I learned in that capacity and by looking into old books that she must be worth over £100,000, over £100,000!"

"I can take this fortune without your assistance."

"With submission, my lord, you cannot. I know too much. The girl's fortune when you have it will go the same way as your rents and woods have gone. Provide for me, therefore, before you begin to spend that money."

"I will give you a life position, with £200 a year. The girl, you say, has no lover."

"She has no lover. Your lordship's rank, your manner, your appearance, will certainly carry the day. By contrast alone with the country bumpkins the heart of the girl will be won."

"Mr. Semple," his lordship raved, "do you suppose that the heart of the girl concerns me? Go and complete your scheme."

The Lady Anastasia was in her dressing room in the hands of her friseur, the French hairdresser, and her maid. She was the young widow of an old baronet. She was also the daughter of an earl and the sister of his successor. She therefore enjoyed the freedom of a widow, the happiness natural to youth and all the privileges of rank. No woman could be happier. It was reported that her love of the card table had greatly impaired her income. The world said that her own private dowry was wholly gone and a large part of her jointure.

She kept a small establishment in Mount Street. Her people consisted of no more than two footmen, a butler, a lady's maid, a housekeeper and three or four maids, with two chairmen. She did not live as a rich woman. She received, it is true, twice a week, on Sundays and Wednesdays, but not with any expense of supper and wine. Her friends came to play cards, and she held the bank for them. On other evenings she went out and played at the houses of her friends.

While the friseur was still completing her head Lord Fylingdale was announced. The lady blushed violently. She sat up and looked anxiously in the glass.

"Betty," she cried, "a touch of red; not much, you clumsy creature! Will you never learn to have a lighter hand? So! That is better. I am horribly pale. His lordship can wait in the morning room. You have nearly finished, monsieur? Quick, then—the last touches! Betty, the flowered satin petticoat! My fan! The pearl necklace! So!" She looked again at the glass. "Am I looking tolerable, Betty?"

"Your ladyship is ravishing," said Betty, finishing the toilet.

Lady Anastasia swam out of the room with a gliding movement, then the fashion, and entered the morning room, where Lord Fylingdale awaited her.

"Anastasia," he said softly, taking her hand. "It is very good of you to see me alone. I feared you would be surrounded with courtiers and fine ladies or with singers, musicians, hairdressers and other baboons. Permit me," and he raised her hand to his lips. "You look divine this morning. It is long since I have seen you look so perfectly charming."

The lady murmured something. She was one of those women who like above all things to hear praises of what most they prize, their beauty, and to believe what they most desire to be the truth, the preservation and perfecting of that beauty.

"I have heard something of the matter. It is almost time, I think, to give these presumptuous shopkeepers a lesson not to interfere with the pursuits of persons of rank. Let them confine themselves to the pretences who play at pitch and toss."

"Oh, what matters their presentment? I shall continue to keep the bank on Sunday nights. Now, my dear lord, what about these plans? What is changed?"

"We thought, you remember, about going to Tunbridge in July."

"Well, shall we not go there?"

"Perhaps. But there is something to be done first. Let me confide in you."

"My dear lord, you have never confided in anybody."

"Except in you. I think you know all my secrets. If I have any. In whom else can I confide? In the creature who importune me for places? In friends of the green table? In friends of the race course? My dear Anastasia, you know, I assure you, as much about my personal affairs as I know myself."

"If you would always speak so kindly!" Her eyes became humid, but not tearful. A lady of fashion must not spoil her cheek by tears.

"Well, then, the case is this: You know of the condition of my affairs—

no one better. An opportunity presents itself to effect a great improvement. I am invited by the highest personage to take a more active part in the affairs of state. No one is to know this. For reasons connected with this proposal I am to visit a certain town—a trading town, a town of rough sailors—there to conduct certain inquiries. There is to be a gathering at this town of the gentry and people of the county. Would you like to go, my dear friend? It will be next month."

"To leave town and in May, just before the end of the season?"

"There will be opportunities. I am told, of holding a bank, and a good many sportsmen—this is a sporting county—may be expected to lay their money. In a word, Anastasia, it will be a bad exchange."

"And how can I help you? Why should I go there?"

"By letting the people, the county people, understand the many virtues and graces which distinguish my character. No one knows me better than yourself."

The lady smiled. "No one," she murmured.

"or can speak with greater authority on the subject. There will be certain of our friends there—the parson, Sir

Harry, the colonel."

"Fah, a beggarly crew and blown upon! They are dangerous."

"Not at this quiet and secluded town.

They will be strangers to you as well as to me. And they will be useful after all, in such a place you need an opening. They will lead the way."

The lady made no response.

"I may call it settled, then?" He still held her hand. "If you would rather not go, Anastasia, I will find some one else, but I had hoped."

She drew away her hand. "You are right," she said. "No one knows you so well as myself. And all I know about you is that you are always contriving some devilry. What is it this time? But you will not tell me. You never tell me."

"Anastasia, you do me an injustice.

This is a purely political step."

"As you will. Call it what you please. I am your servant, you know that; your handmaid in all things save love. Not for any other unfortunate woman, will I lift my little finger.

Should you betray me in this respect?"

He laughed. "A woman? And in that company? Rest easy, dear child.

Be jealous as much as you please, but opt with such a cause."

He touched her cheek with his finger.

He stooped and kissed her hand and withdrew.

Lady Anastasia stood awhile where he left her. The joy had gone out of her heart. She trembled. She was seized with a foreboding of evil. She threw herself upon the sofa and buried her face in her hands, and, forgetful of paste and patch and paint, she suffered the murderous tears to destroy that work of art, her finished face.

EXPLOSION

RESULTED IN DEATH OF FRANK TYTUS AT MIDDLETOWN.

The Young Man Was a Nephew of Mrs. Wm. F. Webb of This City. Funeral Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. F. Webb of Granville street, went to Middletown, O., Friday, and Mr. Webb left this morning to attend the funeral of their nephew, Frank Tytus, who was killed by the explosion of an engine Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Tytus, mother of the deceased, is well known in Newark as she has frequently visited in this city. Friday's Hamilton Democrat publishes the following notice of the accident:

The explosion of an engine in the Tytus-Gardner paper mill at Middletown at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon resulted in the instant death of Frank Tytus and the serious injury of Edward Kidwell and William O'Brien. The engine was a new one, and was being tested when the side of the steam chest blew out. A piece of the broken metal struck young Tytus in the face and chest killing him instantly. He was chief engineer of the mill and was one of the most prominent young society and business men of Middletown. He was a Yale graduate, 24 years of age, an athlete and exceedingly popular. He was a son of the late John Tytus, who was for years a leading paper manufacturer of that state. The funeral of young Tytus will be held Saturday.

PEOPLE'S

Racket Store on the South Side Has Been Purchased by Mr. L. Hirschberg.

Mr. L. Hirschberg, who for many years has been well and favorably known in Newark business circles as the proprietor of the "Great Western" clothing house, has just entered on additional line of business. Mr. Hirschberg has become the proprietor of what until a few months since was known as the Hall 5 and 10 cent store, located on the South Side. The purchase was made from G. F. Dickinson of Columbus, who recently assumed control of the same. Mr. Hirschberg will convert the old stock into that of a first-class "racket store" and operate it upon that basis, with Mr. O. G. Worthington as manager, which arrangement will allow him to continue to give his personal attention to the clothing business. The fair treatment which has so long characterized the "Great Western" will also emanate from the new enterprise which will be known as "The People's Racket Store," insuring it a favorable reception by the public.

HUGE SNAKE

Coiled Itself About a Zanesville Man and His Little Daughter—Given a Bad Fright.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 10.—While sitting on the porch of his home Fred Stremmel and his little daughter were given a terrible scare by a large black snake. The snake crawled from the grass, unnoticed in the dusk of the evening, glided up on the steps and before its presence was noticed had coiled itself about Mr. Stremmel and his little daughter who was sitting on his lap. Neither Mr. Stremmel nor his child noticed the snake until it had completely encircled them.

Fortunately Mr. Stremmel did not become scared, and carefully and easily took hold of the snake's body uncoiled it and then threw it on the floor. He then jumped on the reptile with his feet but missed a fatal spot and the snake succeeded in coiling itself about his legs and began squeezing him. He succeeded in throwing it off again and a second jump ended in the death of the snake. It measured seven feet in length.

Aside from the scare neither Mr. Stremmel nor his daughter sustained any ill effects from their adventure.

FARCE COMEDY GROWS MERRIER

AN ARMISTICE FOR ONE WEEK IS DECLARED

IN THE PRESS POST HOSTILITIES.

All Reporters Working Under Orders
From Union and Against Orders from Proprietor Jones.

Columbus, O. Aug. 10.—An armistice was declared today between the press and the proprietor of the Columbus Press-Post, and his editorial staff, members of the Newswriters' union, who have been making life miserable for him during the past month. The truce has been arranged pending the National Convention of the Typographical Union next week, and will be binding for one week unless Jones breaks out in a new spot before it expires.

During the past week staff representatives of leading newspapers in Chicago and New York have been getting material for true stories of Jones' troubles, including copious illustrations. Local correspondents have also received many orders from their respective papers, with the result that tomorrow the comic opera affairs of the Press-Post will be pretty well "featured" by papers in this state and beyond.

At present the Press-Post is operating with a reportorial staff every member of which has been discharged by the proprietor, but continues at work. Jones signed a contract with the Newswriters' Union binding himself to employ only union reporters and a union city editor, the latter to have sole power to employ and discharge reporters under him, but Jones to have the right to discharge the city editor and name a new one, who shall also be a union man, if such a course seemed necessary to him. The trouble is that Jones cannot find a union city editor who will co-operate with him. He refuses to name a city editor from a list of competent men submitted to him by the union and can't get one elsewhere.

His present "acting" city editor belongs to the union and will not obey Jones' orders with reference to the reporters, all of whom Jones wants unconditionally discharged. Meanwhile Jones cannot employ any other city editor (chiefly because he won't) and is stopped by his contract from acting in that capacity himself, while two recent strikes of his employees in all departments warn him to "go slowly."

The star performer in this drama just now is Miss Clara Markeson, the society editor and the daughter of a well known family in this city. It was Jones himself who asked his city editor to employ Miss Markeson, but since she has become a staunch member of the union he wants to get rid of her along with the others.

The other day he wrote her a letter (she was only six feet away from him) discharging her as "incapable." Then he went to her and asked how she interpreted the letter. She replied that she had not interpreted it.

"Well, then," retorted Jones, "I want your resignation."

"Sorry," said Miss Markeson, "but you can't have it. I can only give that to the city editor and he doesn't want it."

"I shouldn't think you would stay where you are not wanted."

"But the city editor wants me," responded the society editor, smiling sweetly.

"Well, then, I don't think much of the city editor."

This was Jones' parting shot, which it is said, has exposed him to the danger of a personal interview with Miss Markeson's big brother, in case they meet.

Thursday Jones undertook to supplant his society editor with another, but when told that these compositors would not set the new society editor's "copy," he gave it up.

"I guess I'm not of much use around here," he observed, and went home, not showing up until the following day.

All of the reporters are working under orders from the union and against orders from Jones. Jones threatens to "write up" the whole crowd in his department—presumably the editorial department—as he did in the case of City Editor Marshall when he announced editorially that the latter was "wholly incompetent." The others threaten like suits if this is done, and so the farce comedy gets merrier with every act.

The situation is without a parallel in journalism, just as Jones is without a parallel among journalists.

THE PANAMA STRIFE

Rumor of New Raid In Venezuela Not Confirmed.

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS ON WATCH.

No Communication Received From Either Colombia or Venezuela With Reference to the Contention Between the Two Republics—United States Will Be Ready to Act.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Government officials are keeping a close watch of the strained condition of affairs between Colombia and Venezuela.

Although the tilt has not reached a serious aspect, it is appreciated that official and unofficial advices indicated a condition which might mean war between Colombia and Venezuela, complicated by revolutionary outbreaks in both countries. The state department received a rather lengthy mail communication from Consul General Gudgeon at Panama, and though this was dated nearly a month ago, it told of the landing of a revolutionary expedition and expressed the current belief at Panama that this would be followed by other expeditions. The department also received a letter from J. Edward Simmons of New York, president of the Panama Railroad company, confirming his communication relative to the trouble on the isthmus and stating that the superintendent of the road had advised him as to the depredations of an insurgent band which did not number, however, much over 50 men. The more serious aspect of the matter was presented in the press dispatches from Villavieja, stating that the Colombians again had invaded Venezuela. There was no official confirmation as to this, but if it should prove correct, there seems little chance of avoiding an open conflict between these two countries, as such an invasion by Colombia would be in itself an act of war. But the authorities here prefer to take a conservative view of the situation until official advices are at hand. When inquiry was made as to why our officials at Bogota and elsewhere did not send full information on the subject, it was stated that these officials were not there to communicate news, but only to advise this government as a preliminary to any official action which might become necessary.

As far as known neither of the governments involved has addressed the United States government concerning the trouble on the isthmus, nor has there been any occasion for this government to address either of them in the premises. If traffic on the isthmus should be stopped it probably would bring about an inquiry by the United States government to the government of Colombia as to the ability of the latter to cope with the situation, for the primary duty is on Colombia, and only when she fails will the United States step in. When a similar trouble arose in 1885 the United States did not act until the Colombian government requested action, making it plain that the trouble had got beyond the power of its authorities.

The Colombian legation had no news to confirm the report of a new Colombian invasion of Venezuela. Mr. Hervey, secretary of the legation, discussed generally the ability of Colombia to cope with an actual war with Venezuela. He pointed out that Colombia has a population of 5,000,000, against 3,000,000 of Venezuela, and an army of about 40,000 men. He expressed his earnest hope that a condition of actual war would not result from the present troubles, but advised his country to be fully able to take care of herself in that emergency.

At the navy department no further steps were taken towards relaxing ships to the isthmus. It was decided, however, to send the battleship Wisconsin down to San Diego, Cal., in case the desirability of that move became evident by the time she reached San Francisco, and the state department was so advised. There was some comment also as to the possibility of sending down some of the ships of the North Atlantic squadron, but Acting Secretary Hackett treated the suggestions as rather premature. There is no doubt, however, that an ample force will be sent from the squadron if its presence seems desirable.

Terrific Storm In Nebraska.

Elwood, Neb., Aug. 10.—A terrific wind, rain and hail storm swept over Gosper county, Neb. The rain varied from one to five inches, and caused much damage, while the hail fell so thick in spots that it formed cakes of ice. Four miles north of Elwood a tornado passed through the country, leveling buildings on the farms of Mose Tucker and Matt Lux. Grain in stacks was scattered for miles about the country, and horses and cattle were carried by the wind. On the Lux farm a wagon tongue was driven through one of the largest trees on the place.

Hawaii Wants Tariff on Coffee.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The interdepartmental committee on Hawaiian affairs, adopted by the Hawaiian legislature praying that congress impose a duty on all coffee imported from other countries, "and in this way protect that industry in Hawaii and other parts of the United States." The resolution will be forwarded to congress at the opening of the next session.

Mining Stampede.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 10.—An old-fashioned mining stampede has been started to the Big Snowy mountains, 10 miles east of Helena, by the discovery of gold deposits. From one source it has been learned that the discovery was completely accidental. A gold miner, while engaged in the usual work of a miner, discovered a gold vein. The gold was found in a small stream, and the discovery was made by a miner who was engaged in the usual work of a miner.

MARIE ENGLE, THE AMERICAN PRIMA DONNA.

M. CAMBON

The French Ambassador in an Interview on American Affairs in a Paris Newspaper.

Paris, Aug. 10.—In an interview in The Echo, M. Jules Cambon, French ambassador in Washington, says on the subject of the steel strike that the workmen in America are not hostile to the moneyed aristocracy, as he believes that with intelligence and good luck they may also be as successful as Carnegie. M. Cambon is also quoted as saying: "Europeans have no idea how hard Americans, both rich and poor, work. The French people are not aware how many French there are in America, especially the descendants of the United States who settled by the French, and if their descendants have not preserved their language they still love France. The Americans speak English, but they are not English. The whole effort of the Americans has been to fold into a single metal the French, English and Germans, who compose the nation. The French language is spoken in the schools, and the children of the French who are vainly seeking employment in schools would go to America they could easily gain a good living there as teachers."

Describing the country, M. Cambon says: "When one returns to Europe after living with the Americans everything here looks small. America is so colossal and so young that she has many other surprises in store for Europe."

Tom Johnson's Program.

Cleveland, Aug. 10.—Tom Johnson's future political plans are becoming well formulated. He expects to be a candidate for reelection to the position of mayor of this city, and in case he is elected he will at the expiration of that term be a candidate for governor of Ohio, which position he considers an excellent one to place him in line for the Democratic presidential nomination. He is a candidate for the presidency, and he will now devote his spare time to securing a solid and undisputed control of the machinery of the party in this state. He expects to name a legislative ticket in this county which will win.

INDIAN CHIEF KILLED

Started the Fracas Himself and Lost His Life.

THE TROUBLE WAS ABOUT A SQUAW

Red Man Ordered The Woman From His House and When Another Brave Took Her In He Followed the Example of His Pale Face Brothers by Getting Jealous.

Gowanda N. Y. Aug. 10.—An Indian tragedy occurred here which has all the elements of a pale-face romance of jealousy and murder, except that the noble red man who started the fracas lost his own life thereby.

Chief of the Seneca Indians on the Cattaraugus reservation, and one of the most prominent red men in this part of the United States, is dead: Richard Crouse, another red man high in the councils of the Indians, is in a precarious condition, and his son Dick is under arrest as the result of a bloody fight which took place on the Crouse farm, about six miles from here. Feeling runs high, and it is said other Indians are arming and further trouble is expected. The federal authorities in Buffalo have been notified of the trouble, but as yet no one has arrived to take charge of affairs for the government. The trouble started over a woman who had been a housekeeper for Jamison and whom he had chased away from his home.

Being cast adrift she went to the Crouse home and when Jamison heard it he procured a gun and started for that place. He broke open the door and began firing into the room where Crouse and the girl were hiding. Crouse was shot in the ear and above the heart. Crouse's son, who was in the barn, ran to his father's assistance and Jamison ran away. Crouse and his son gave chase. Jamison was found several hours later with his body riddled with bullets and he died in a few hours.

M'KINLEY WILL GO

To the Expo. and September 4 Will Be the Banner Day.

Canton, O., Aug. 10.—Arrangements have been made for "president's day" at the Pan-American exposition. President J. G. Milburn and Director General W. L. Buchanan of the exposition, Mayor Diehl of Buffalo and John I. Scatthorn came here for the purpose. They spent most of the afternoon at the McKinley home. Besides selecting the date, it was arranged that the president should leave here Wednesday morning, Sept. 4, and reach Buffalo the same evening. The full program is to be worked out in detail later, but opportunity will be provided the president to see the exposition complete and to best advantage both day and night. Thursday will be largely given over to the special program for "president's day," with parades, possibly speaking and other features. Friday the presidential party will spend at Niagara Falls. Part of Saturday will probably be spent at the exposition, and the presidential party will leave for Cleveland Saturday afternoon or evening and remain in that city for the Grand Army encampment the week of Sept. 9. The trip will be made by train.

May Move Youngstown Mills.

Youngstown, O., Aug. 10.—An official of the American Steel Hoop company announced the policy of his company in regard to operating the mills here, which have been idle since July 1. The company has plans under consideration that will result in the removal of the upper and lower mills here to a point in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, where they can be operated with less certainty of labor trouble. The company is willing to sign the scale agreed upon at the conference with the Amalgamated Association and light the mills at once, otherwise they will be moved. The employees may take this in the light of a threat, a bluff or intimidation, but if so, they will find they are mistaken. The mills will be operated, if not in Youngstown then elsewhere.

Making Headway.

Havana, Aug. 10.—The constitutional convention Friday went forward rapidly with the electoral bill, 81 articles out of the total of 108 having been approved. The principal change from the original text was to reduce the number of voters required in order to propose a candidate for election. After considerable discussion it was decided that in the province of Havana a candidate for the office of representative, governor, provincial senator or senatorial elector or presidential elector must be proposed by no more than 500 voters. Santiago and Matanzas 200 voters. Pinar del Rio 100, which is one-third of the number originally proposed.

No Portents For Dembitzky.
